

The discontinuance provides insufficient time to convert existing services to another carrier. Due to order processing times and complexity of tasks, Fedex requires an additional 30 days to ensure all services can be converted without a disruption of services.